

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| 7. Ut intellexit DidymusQuia surrexerat Jesus,Remansit fere dubius, alleluia. 8. Vide Thoma, vide latus,Vide pedes, vide manus,Noli esse incredulus, alleluia. 9. Quando Thomas Christilatus,Pedes vidit atque manus,Dixit : Tu es Deus meus,alleluia. 10. Beati qui non viderunt,Et firmiter crediderunt,Vitam aeternam habebunt,alleluia 11. In hoc festo sanctissimoSit laus et jubilatio,BENEDICAMUS DOMINO,alleluia. 12. De quibus nos humillimasDevotas atque debitasDEO dicamus GRATIAS,alleluia. | 7. When Thomas first the tidings heard,how they had seen the risen Lord,he doubted the disciples' word,alleluia. 8. "My piercéd side, O Thomas, see;My hands, My feet, I show to thee;not faithless, but believing be,"alleluia. 9. No longer Thomas then denied,he saw the feet, the hands, the side;"Thou art my Lord and God," hecried, alleluia. 10. How blest are they who have notseen,And yet whose faith has constant been,For they eternal life shall win, alleluia. 11. On this most solemn feast let's raiseOur hearts to God in hymns of praise,And let us bless the Lord always,alleluia. 12. Our grateful thanks to God let's giveIn humble manner, while we live,For all the favours we receive, alleluia. |
|---|--|

Jean Tisserand O.F.M., d. 1494

Translation from Evening Office, 1748 and Divine Office, 1763

Verses 6–9, J. M. Neale, 1818–66

24.

Alleluia

This alleluia comes from Lauds of Easter Sunday.

Ant.
VI.

A

Llelú-ia, * allelu-ia, alle-lú-ia.